

Tim Hudson is a Yamaha Performing Artist, Summit Recording Artist, and Artist/Teacher of Trumpet at Gardner-Webb University. He is a graduate of Indiana University (honor graduate), New England Conservatory of Music (honor graduate) and UNC Greensboro, and studied trumpet with Charles Schlueter (Boston Symphony Orchestra), Edmund Cord (Israel Philharmonic), and Frederick Beck (UNC Greensboro). As a performer, Mr. Hudson has been a member of several prestigious US and international orchestras, including the Knoxville Symphony, Chamber Orchestra of Northern New York, New England Philharmonic, Symphony Orchestra of the State of Mexico, NC Opera, International Orchestra (Israel), New England Chamber Orchestra, Camerata Chamber Orchestra (IN), Oslo Philharmonic (Norway), Mid-Atlantic Chamber Orchestra (DC), Boston Philharmonic, Greensboro Symphony (NC), Winston-Salem Symphony (NC), Charlotte Symphony (NC), Charleston Symphony (SC), Fort Wayne Philharmonic (IN), and North Carolina Symphony. He has performed under such world class conductors as Lorin Maazel, Yoel Levi, Leonard Slatkin, Grant Llewellyn, James DePreist, Mariss Jansons, Gunther Schuller, Skitch Henderson and Enrique Batiz. Mr. Hudson performed and recorded a PBS Special with the Canadian Brass, Canterbury Brass and Star of Indiana, and has recorded for Summit Records, Academy Sound and Vision, Ltd. (London), DSEM (Mexico), Mode Records (NY), Mark Records (NY), Mellencamp and Associates Group of the Navarre Corp. (IN), and IBA (Israel) labels. He has been a winner of chamber music competitions at Fischhoff (IN), Coleman (CA), and the New York Brass Conference Quintet Competition. His interest in new music has led to dozens of world premiere performances and recordings including Copper Lake Fantasy by David P. Jones, written for Mr. Hudson and Boston Symphony Orchestra Pianist Deborah Dewolf Emery, Piedmont Suite for Carolina Brass by Arthur Frackenpohl, and Language Of The Soul by Gwyneth Walker, which Mr. Hudson recently premiered live on NPR's The State of Things. As an educator, Mr. Hudson has served as Instructor of Trumpet at the Crane School of Music, SUNY Potsdam (where he received "The 1991-1992 Most Outstanding Faculty Member" award), the Conservatory of Music of the State of Mexico, Indiana University, University of Tennessee, Tunghai University (Taichung, Taiwan), NC School of the Arts, UNC Chapel Hill, and High Point University. Mr. Hudson has given numerous masterclasses and solo recitals at many of the nations leading universities. He regularly publishes articles, arranges and transcribes music, is a Record Reviewer for the International Trumpet Guild Journal, and an adjudicator for the National Trumpet Competition. His former students hold prestigious positions in orchestras such as the LA Philharmonic, Mexico City Philharmonic, and Charlotte Symphony, and also perform on Broadway and lead successful programs at the secondary and university levels. Mr. Hudson is the founding member and Director of the Carolina Brass, an ensemble committed to the arts in education. Under his direction, Carolina Brass has become a national touring ensemble, with compact disc recordings distributed internationally on the Summit Record label. Mr. Hudson maintains a very active performance schedule, with over 250 performances each year.
